ABSTRACT

This book introduces music reading skills in 21 lessons that focus on the violin but which may be applied to the study of any musical instrument. The lessons are designed for beginning music students and build upon previous lessons in the book. This volume focuses on the violin because of the large number of students presently learning to play it by rote. The lessons are divided into three parts: the theoretical section, the rhythm section, and the pitch section. The final lessons focus on creating a composition and reviewing the previous materials. A glossary of musical symbols and terms and an index of the pieces in the book conclude the document. (EH)
